

ParkLogic was recently featured in an article on prestigious domaining website dnJournal. The review was an outstanding endorsement of the domain management platform and the culmination of years of work.

Michael Gilmour, executive director and founder said, "It's great to finally let the domaining community know about what ParkLogic has been up to these last few years. We're really excited about how much value the analytics, reporting and optimisation is adding for our customers."

If you would like to read the complete article on dnJournal then click on the link below:

Link to dnJournal article